Paddy’s Palms Irish Pub & Resort

Paddy’s Palms has an excellent menu for all the family and is located just up the hill from White Sand Beach. The menu offers a wealth of classic pub dishes such as Irish stew, breakfasts, fish and chips and pies. Don’t forget to try the special Sunday roast. If these don’t fill you up then try one of their homemade desserts. Children’s and Thai menus are also available.

Paddy’s offers draught Guinness and Kilkenny as well as a wide range of beers, spirits, ciders and cocktails. Live sports are shown on 13 big screens and there is a pool table, free Wi-Fi and table fussball.

There is a happy hour from 4-7pm every day and a second one from 10-12pm from Monday to Friday.

There is a car park behind the pub and if you want to stay close to the action Paddy’s has a good value resort with a swimming pool.

Thai Massage

There are an ever-growing number of Spas on Koh Chang offering an enormous array of different treatments to relax, cleanse, cure, tone and pamper the senses. So whilst you are here on Koh Chang why not live a little and treat yourselves to a healthy and relaxing massage or spa treatment? Below we offer you an insight into traditional Thai Massage.

Thailand is one of the world leaders in the provision of Spa treatments to international visitors and this has developed from the nation’s great history as a repository of massage and traditional medical expertise. Much of this is due to Thai Massage which is an ancient discipline that is thought to have been introduced to the country from India along with Buddhism in the second to third centuries BC. Thai massage in its most traditional form is known in Thai as Nuad Bo-Rarn, literally ancient pressure.

The theory that underpins Thai massage is the concept that the body contains 72,000 sen which are vessels or pathways for lom – air or energy. The massage process concentrates on the applying of pressure to the most important sen thus releasing tension within the body.

The main characteristics of Thai Massage are that it involves deep massage and manipulation by stretching. It is generally performed on a mat on the floor, without the use of oil. The masseur performs a slow and progressive routine of sequential pressures and movements that relax the muscles to prepare for the comprehensive stretches that follow. The masseur typically uses their body weight to assist with these stretches.

There are significant benefits of Thai Massage, to the extent that it is formally recognised as a traditional medicine in Thailand. These include the stimulation of the circulatory and lymphatic systems as well as the stimulation of internal organs. It can assist with muscle pains, strains and spasms. Regular massage improves body posture as well as increasing flexibility. It relieves fatigue and causes a feeling of relaxation combined with increased levels of energy.

There are many places on Koh Chang where you can enjoy a Thai massage ranging from practitioners who will perform a massage for you on the beach up to the opulent and luxurious settings of the Spas themselves. So choose one that suits you and enjoy an ancient and healthy pleasure.

Yam: Thai Salads

Whilst Thai cuisine has become very popular around the world and many of its signature dishes are now well known there is one particular type of Thai food that hasn’t yet received the notice that it deserves. This is the Thai salad or Yam. In understanding the pleasures of a Yam you first have to suspend your existing perceptions of what a salad is. The Thai Yam is certainly not a forgotten mound of lettuce and carrot sitting forlornly at the side of a plate. Instead you can expect a zesty and vigorous combination of ingredients that will make your taste buds sit up and take notice.

The word “Yam” itself means mix in Thai and that gives a pretty good feel for the idea behind the dish itself. The aim is to mix together ingredients with very different textures and flavours to make a powerful whole. Most yams will feature the four “tastes” of Thai cuisine, which are sour, sweet, salty and spicy. And beware because sometimes they can be very very spicy indeed.

Another contrast with a Western-style salad is the way that yams are prepared and served. They are one of the very few Thai foods that don’t typically come with rice and whilst they are sometimes prepared as part of a full meal it is more typical for them to be eaten as a snack or as an accompaniment to social drinks. That doesn’t mean of course that you aren’t allowed to have them as a main dish, and most go very well with rice at the side as well.

There are countless different types of Yam but a characteristic base would include a couple of chopped shallots together with nam pla fish sauce, lime juice, sugar and dried or whole chillies (the four “flavours” again). Fresh coriander and fresh mint leaves are often added as well and chopped tomato is another common addition. To this base some form of meat or vegetables are added. These are often added hot from cooking whilst the other ingredients are typically added at room temperature of even chilled so the dish itself when served is neither hot or cold, but at or around room temperature.

Common yams include Yam Goong featuring prawns, Yam Kai Dow with a fried egg, Yam Wunsen with glass noodles and minced pork and Yam Mu Gop with crispy fried pork.

The beauty of course is that you can add almost anything that comes to mind to the yam base and quickly produce a tasty and healthy dish.
Recipe: Pomelo Salad

This delicious example of Thai Yam salads is an intriguing combination of the bittersweet Pomelo fruit and fresh seafood.

Ingredients
Pomelo Fruit - four segments
Prawns - 50 grammes
Squid - 50 grammes
2 medium Shallots - sliced into thin circles
Cashew Nuts - 20 (peanuts will do also)
Small red/green Thai chillies - 5-10 or to taste
Tamarind Juice - 1 tablespoon
Sugar - 2 teaspoons - or to taste
Nam Pla Fish sauce - 1/2 tablespoon
Juice of 1/2 lime
Lettuce for serving.

Method
1 - Boil the tamarind juice and add the sugar and stir until dissolved, then add the lime juice and the fish sauce and mix. Set the mixture aside.
2 - Fry the cashew nut in a little oil for two or three minutes until just browned.
3 - Blanch the squid and prawns in boiling water for a couple of minutes until just cooked.
4 - Mix the Pomelo pieces together with the squid and the prawns into the tamarind sauce mixture. Now add the shallots and the chopped chillies and stir well.
5 - Place on a plate beside a couple of leaves of lettuce and serve.
Recipe - Grilled Pork Salad

After reading this issue’s feature on Thailand’s delicious Yam Salads it’s only fitting that we give you a recipe for one so that you can try for yourselves. This delicious salad features marinated pork steak strips at its core and surrounds this with a wealth of textures and flavours.

It is very simple to prepare and can be served, as the Thais do, as shared snack dish or with rice as a main meal.

Ingredients:
- Pork - 250gms
- Cucumber (one large or two small)
- Half an Onion
- 3 Tomatoes - 3
- 4-5 Spring Onions
- 3-4 Chillies - Prik Kee Noo (or whatever you can get)
- Lime Juice - 1 Tablespoon
- Nam Pla Fish Sauce - 1.5 Tablespoons
- Sugar - A pinch
- Shredded cabbage to serve
Recipe - Yam Moo Yang

Method
1 - Marinate the pork steak into strips in the soy sauce and black pepper for half an hour.

2 - Now fry the pork in a hot non-stick pan for three minutes a side until just browned. Remove from pan and allow to cool.

3 - Next make the salad. Chop all the vegetables, not too finely, and mix them all together, adding the chopped chilli.

4 - Then add one and a half tablespoons of fish sauce, 1 tablespoon of lime juice and half a teaspoon of sugar.

5 - Finally slice the meat into strips and stir into the salad, making sure to mix well.

6 - Arrange the mixed Yam onto a plate with the shredded cabbage at the side and serve.

300M waterfront on the East Coast
This unique plot of Chanote land comprises a long thin strip that runs between the road and the sea and offers an amazing 300 metres of waterfront despite being only 3,500 sqm. or 2.2 Rai in area. The land is cleared, landscaped and a house is in place. It has huge development potential. Price: 18M Baht

Backpacker Resort Franchise
This is a very interesting opportunity for people who have never managed a resort to purchase a backpacker resort franchise that has recently been developed in Bang Bao in the south of Koh Chang. The beauty of this idea is that you will step into a fully realised business that has already had all the effort of brand development, marketing, business plans and the like put into it. The Franchise partners provide a full turnkey package where the franchisee takes over a fully functional & profitable hostel/resort after spending time training and we continue to provide bed occupancy rates traditionally above the Island norm. This is ideal for those new to resort management. 10 rooms, 4 dorms: Price: 3.5 Million Baht

Apartments & Houses
We represent all of the island’s main property developments so e-mail us your requirements and we’ll have them get in contact with you directly.
